mornington peninsula

Testament to extensibility.

Challenge

The Mornington Peninsula is a popular tourist destination in Melbourne, Australia.

The website incorporated a key system that was driving all the content on operator pages and embedded deeply into other areas of the website. The system was in use for many years and built on dated technology that needed to be retired and replaced.

Solution

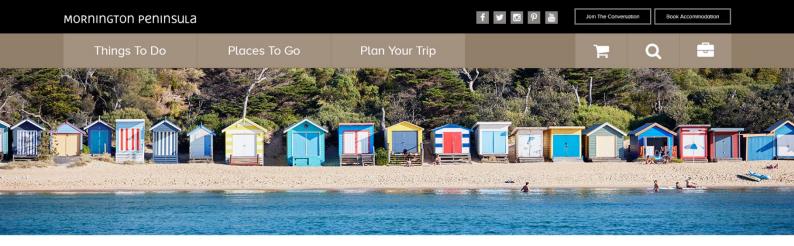

Integrate DNN with the Australian Tourism Data Warehouse (ATDW).

Having the website on the DNN platform allowed us to develop a series of bespoke modules to replace the legacy modules. We were literally able to switch the old modules with the new modules, rolling out a similar set of data from a new source.

Results

A project that could have required a complete rebuild became a simpler project to extend the current website.

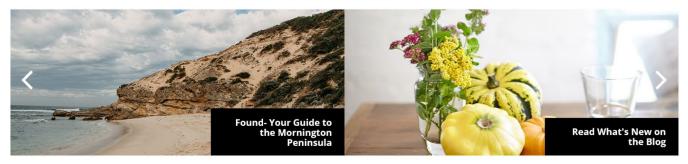

In addition to the integration with ATDW, we are now deploying a brand update that is transforming the look and feel of the website with minimal effort.
